This two-day immigration law training course will be presented by Attorneys Mary Holper and Peggy Gleason. Mary Holper is the supervising attorney for Boston College Immigration and Asylum Project. She formerly worked as a detention attorney for Clinic and is the author of the Immigration Law and Crimes manual we will use for the course. She is a frequent speaker on the area of Immigration Law and Crimes. Peggy Gleason is an attorney with CLINIC and Catholic Charities in Washington, D.C. The course will cover crime-based inadmissibility and deportability, waivers, representation strategies, and practice pointers for representing an immigrant with a conviction or a pending criminal charge. The impact of domestic violence and DUIs, as well as aggravated felonies and crimes of moral turpitude will be explained. Trainers will present an overview of removal proceedings and rights in removal, and relief from removal for clients with crime issues. Trainers will explain possible remedies for ICE misconduct in arrests and searches such as motions to suppress. Trainers will also discuss strategies for responding to ICE raids, organizing the community and preparing defenses for such arrests. The training is for the staff of community-based organizations with IRS 501(c) (3) status, and attorneys and legal worker staff of private law offices.

Space is limited. Register Early. For more information, call Chris Ozaki at (415) 394-9371.
